WORKING TO EMPOWER PEOPLE THROUGH INNOVATION

WE ARE ALL IN THIS TOGETHER.

Innovation is the backbone of transforming HIV care. We are committed to driving forward research in pursuit of a cure with more than 100 research partners and clinical trials. We are empowered as a community by the potential of today's long-acting HIV treatment and prevention options. But medicine alone is not enough. It takes all of us to improve access to care and help to address the differentiated needs of those impacted by HIV in the effort to get closer to our common goal. We're working together to end the HIV epidemic for everyone, everywhere.

INVENTING FOR LIFE

Dear Conference Attendees,

Welcome to the 2024 ANAC annual conference here in Indianapolis. I am grateful to spend the next four days with you, my ANAC family, eager to meet first-time attendees and to hear from our speakers- we have a great line-up this year.

It has been a rough time leading up to the conference. I am shook and there's no way not to acknowledge that. For many of us, the last few days has been a time to reflect on where we stand and how to stay grounded in our work and beliefs and move forward in these troubled times. I hold onto the words from another... "We must stay true to the belief that the honorable side of America will prevail as it has in the past. Grieve now and then lets begin the job of resistance. You are not alone."

Our content reflects the beliefs that we share, consistent and planned before the election. We open with reflections on the power of individual nurses to impact a patient and their family and their community. This is our super power. Next, health policy experts from the President's Advisory Council on HIV/AIDS (PACHA) will highlight what's been achieved in the past year and grapple with what the future may hold. The important role of the CDC and investing in public health infrastructure, teamed with the critical role of the NIH and investing in science and research to continue the progress in HIV prevention and treatment are the focus of Friday plenaries. Saturday morning, we focus on the role of PEPFAR in global health and we close with a session on the impact of climate change on health and healthcare.

Throughout the conference there are important and thought-provoking sessions on health disparities, stigma, and clinical updates so that you can best serve your patients, clients and communities. We invite you to stop into any of our committee meetings that interest you and consider getting more involved in 2025. Grieve now, then remember our superpower!

We have many registered from the local Indianapolis community, nurses, other providers, activists and community members. Join me in welcoming them into ANAC. We are hosting the Awards Dinner on Thursday night and closing the conference with the Gala on Saturday night. I am always boosted by the joy at the Awards Dinner- recognizing our colleagues is a good thing! This year's Gala (aka gay-la) promises to be special - a Drag Race disco- hosted by the famous Indy Bag Ladies- iconic Drag Queens in all their splendor! The cost of these events is included in the registration and all are welcome.

Last but certainly not least, I want to thank our sponsors and supporters who make the conference possible, the conference committee for their guidance, and a BIG shout out to the ANAC staff who have worked so hard on pulling this together.

My hope is we will all leave conference a little more grounded and determined in going forward with kindness and commitment to addressing the social determinants of health and achieving health equity for all.

Sincerely,

Carole Treston, RN, MPH, ACRN, FAAN
ANAC Executive Director

Implementing Long-Acting ART in Clinical Practice: Nursing Perspectives

The advent of the first LA-ART agents and regimen represents a major paradigm shift in HIV management, enabling patients and HCPs to experience the use of ART differently than has been the case for decades with daily oral therapy. This session will explore the practical steps required to realize the potential of LA-ART on the part of both patients and HCPs, drawing on real-world experiences and insights from implementation studies.

The US Latino HIV Crisis – Ending an Era of Invisibility

While the country has made incredible overall progress toward Ending the HIV Epidemic, Latinos face a different reality. Between 2010 and 2022, there was an overall 19% decline in new HIV infections, but during the same period, Latinos experienced a 12% increase. In the United States, Latinos are the second-largest racial or ethnic group after Whites, and their share of the population is rapidly growing. Simply put, we cannot end our HIV epidemic without first ending the Latino HIV Crisis. This talk will provide context for the lack of HIV progress among Latinos and discuss opportunities to amplify the national response.

HIV Criminalization for Nursing Professionals

There is a national movement to end HIV criminalization, a term used to describe laws that criminalize otherwise legal conduct based on a person's HIV-positive status. Nationwide, thousands of PLWH have been arrested and prosecuted in recent decades. Medical experts, including ANAC and ANA, argue these laws do not align with current HIV science, add to stigma, and negatively impact health outcomes. This session provides an overview of the issue and identifies specific ways nursing professionals can support their clients affected by HIV criminal laws and help with reform efforts.

Tackling the Rise of STIs with Doxy-PEP

Bacterial sexually transmitted infections in the US are unrelenting, with 2.5 million diagnoses of chlamydia, gonorrhea, and syphilis reported in 2022. Although there have been some improvements in gonorrhea and chlamydia cases, syphilis is worsening. Most alarming is the number of congenital syphilis cases, signaling an urgent need for innovative prevention strategies. Doxycycline postexposure prophylaxis (doxy-PEP) is a novel STI intervention strategy that is highly effective in reducing bacterial STIs.
